UNDER REVIEW

1. Mispricing and Anomalies: An Exogenous Shock to Short Selling from the Dividend Tax Law Change
(with Yufeng Han, Weike Xu & Guofu Zhou)
  - The Accounting Review, Under Review
  - Presentations: CICF 2022, SFS Cavalcade North America 2021, AFA 2021 \(Ph.D. Poster\), MFA 2021, FMA 2021, CIRF 2021, SFA 2020, WashU Olin Finance Brownbag, and UNC Charlotte Finance Seminar

- Whether anomalies are due to mispricing or risk is an important question. We study the causal effect of short-sale constraints on anomalies by examining an extensive set of 182 anomalies documented in the accounting, finance and economics literature. Our identification strategy relies on a persistent, robust and plausibly exogenous shock to short-selling supply induced by the dividend tax law change in the Job and Growth Tax Relief Reconciliation Act (JGTRRA) of 2003. We find that anomalies become stronger following the dividend record months, driven by stronger overpricing as opposed to underpricing in the post-JGTRRA periods. Interestingly, while the shock magnifies returns to most anomaly types, we find that valuation anomalies seem unlikely to be driven by mispricing.
2. An On-line Machine Learning Return Prediction (with Weidong Tian)
    - Pacific-Basin Finance Journal, Under Review
    - Presentations: CIRF 2022, INFORMS 2020, International Risk Management Conference \(IRMC\) 2020
    - This paper presents a new prediction methodology for long-short portfolio return in its multiplicative version. Our method relies on the on-line universal portfolio construction. We derive a closed-form predicting formula whose coefficients are solely determined by historical data. We empirically and robustly demonstrate that the predictive error can be as small as 2%. This methodology provides a promising application of on-line machine learning to portfolio return prediction with a sufficiently large dataset.

WORKING PAPERS & WORK IN PROGRESS

1. Macroeconomic Extrapolation, Machine Learning, and Equity Risk Premium Forecast (with Yufeng Han)
  - Job Market Paper
  - Presentations: FMA 2022 (scheduled), International Symposium on Forecasting 2022, CIRF 2022,
  - We present a macroeconomic trend extrapolation approach that utilizes all economic fundamentals of different time periods simultaneously in the aggregate market. We demonstrate that the trend-pooling method statistically and economically outperforms the historical average that assumes a constant equity risk premium, as well as Rapach, Strauss, Zhou's \(2010\) simple pooling method that ignores the historical information in macroeconomics. We further find that extrapolating via machine learning techniques generates monthly out-of-sample  $R_{OS}^2$  statistics as high as 4%. Extrapolating economic fundamentals with a grid of moving averages more closely tracks important macroeconomic fluctuations and more effectively regulates the forecast variability, thereby generating superior and robust forecasting gains consistently over time.
2. Equity Forward Return from Derivatives (with Weidong Tian & Steven P. Clark)
  - Presentations: FMA 2022 (scheduled), AFA 2022 \(Ph.D. Poster\), 2021 CICF, , the 4th Derivatives Youth Forum
  - This paper presents the equity index's forward return with market available index option price and gamma, VIX-future, and VIX-option price. Using this expression of forward return from derivatives, we document a pro-cyclical term structure of expected equity risk premium and a robust short-term reversal pattern. Moreover, by designing and implementing a market-timing strategy, the forward return predicts well an underperformed market, and its investment value can be substantial.
3. Reconciling Forecasts (under empirical analysis stage)
4. Options and the Expected Market Return (under empirical analysis stage)
